

THE THREAD IN THE RIVER

PHOTOGRAPHS BY JANE ALDEN STEVENS

---

We enter the River when we are born, and leave it when we die. Our lives consist of myriad experiences, each influenced by circumstances and surroundings. All the while, the current pulls and pushes us inexorably forward, as echoes of our past become part of the water of life that surrounds us.

Over the past four decades, I have photographically studied my family's evolutionary development as it has grown in size and complexity. Out of this has emerged a multi-faceted psychological portrait of us as a group and as individuals. Who are we at different ages? How well do we know ourselves? In what ways do we connect with one another? I seek the answers to these questions through photography.

My family is the thread, the lifeline that I cling to as we are swept along the River. As it carries us forward, I will continue to mark our passage.

I was assisted by many people in the creation of this exhibition. First and foremost, my enduring gratitude goes to my soulmate-in-the-search-for-perfection, Laura Fisher, whose tireless efforts went well above and beyond the call of duty. Working with her and Alex McClay was pure joy. I am also grateful to Whitney and Phillip Long for sponsoring the exhibition, and to Dennie Eagleson for her unfailing support and encouragement.

Invaluable technical support and advice was provided by Jon Cone, Walker Blackwell, and Dana Hillesland of Cone Editions Press in Vermont. Every artist should be so lucky to have a framer par excellence like Laurie Gilbert. I would also like to thank Michael Everett, Andy Marko, and Charles Woodman for their input and efforts on my behalf.

Finally, my appreciation for my family knows no bounds. Without their patience and willingness to participate in my photographic activities over the years, even when they didn't necessarily understand what I was doing, this project would not exist.
